

MINING ACTIVE IN THE BRADSHAW

(From Tuesday's Daily)

At no time in the past five years have the districts in the Bradshaw Mountains been so active in mine development as at present and not in many years has there been evident such a universal movement to operate on lines that carry so much interest and consideration in deep mining. In the past three months there seems to have been a general awakening to a realization of the splendid possibilities of that region, and a keen appreciation of the merits of several properties that are classed in the pioneer location column and limited exploitation.

Prominent in the line of resumption, that of the Lincoln is regarded as significant. Mr. Miller, who will handle this old time proposition, is expected to arrive from Goldfield, Nev., in the next few weeks, to begin a system of development that will carry a heavy outlay of capital and extend into the thorough opening of that mine and to great depth. A permanent camp will be established and a large force of miners employed. The Lincoln is generally regarded in mining circles of that section as a fine piece of mining ground, and with practical methods will prove the wisdom of the investment. This Mr. Miller is reported to possess, and in Nevada bears an excellent name from years of operation in that state.

Operations have been resumed on the Tiger Gold Company's mines at Harrington, and the mill is also running at intervals on ores taken from the new shaft that is being sunk at the mouth of the main tunnel. This work is being done preparatory to reaching virgin ground to the north, and which was originally undertaken a few years ago. A. G. Scherer is the resident general manager of the company, and is directing the important undertaking. The Tiger interests are attracting much attention, and it is believed the operations under way are the beginning of a new era for that proposition.

Among the new operators that have recently entered the field on the Mascot group, two miles south of Crown King, that of the Superior-Nevada Mining company, is attracting very much interest. This proposition is under the management of H. Lund, who is personally directing the work. So favorable is the showing that it is said to be the purpose to erect a mill to treat the output in the near future and to increase the force with a view of reaching heavier production. The company is constructing a new wagon road from the railroad depot, and contemplates taking in heavy mining supplies and machinery immediately.

At the Old Tiger a force of miners is employed in development and the showing is said to be promising. The character of work going on is in stopping, and the yield is said to be satisfactory. In a short time the present force will be materially increased, and the property put on its former basis of production.

At the Wildflower group it is now in general circulation in the Bradshaws that the property never looked as attractive and that creation of one of the biggest mines in that belt is assured, is freely admitted by men of ability who have recently inspected it. This property has assumed a deep interest from what has been accomplished in the past few months and especially so from determinations given on the 500 foot level. In a winze sunk from this point and in an upraise made, the vein was strong and the values higher than ever known. The Wildflower is one of the oldest mining propositions in that region, and will soon be the center of the largest operating force it has ever had. The condition of this property at the present time is the subject of much comment, and that it is entering its most important era is now believed by men who have examined it at depth.

The Pacific Copper Mining company is attracting more attention at the present time than ever before in its history, and the current feeling is that it has passed the prospect stage and is now one of the coming big mines of the field where it is situated. The new road from Harrington to the camp is ready for traffic, and will be utilized in a few months hence by large shipments of new mining machinery, the purpose being to discard the old appliances and to increase the force with double the number of men now employed. The company has outlined a plan that carries a large expenditure, and will drive their main shaft to a depth of 1,000 feet as fast as possible. The showing on the 450 foot level prompted this great undertaking. W. V. DeCamp is the consulting engineer of the company, and is located at the mine.

While but little publicity is given the War Eagle-Gladiator development, reports from that camp are favorable of the work that progresses in the long drift to establish the existence of large ore bodies at the junction of the two veins. Lester Jackson, who is directing this work, believes that within the next three months the task will be finished, and is optimistic of solving one of the greatest mineral problems that has ever been accomplished in that zone.

It is reported that the taking over of the Towers mines, on the western slope of the Bradshaws, will be effected within the next thirty days. Mr. Waldron, a Colorado operator, having an option on the ground. He has recently visited the place, and is pleased at the showing. He has also ordered a complete equipment of machinery, which is en route to his camp. He bears an excellent name as a mining man.
